

ABSTRACT

A system and method are provided that enable at least one of a user of a component exchange system and entities trading on that exchange to access a master cross reference list of components, including a list of inferred equivalent components, to guide component trading decisions.